Head Teacher's Update

As we made our way through another week of school we saw some more amazing work produced and activities undertaken. There has been some awesome photos of all the students this week and these highlight the progress being made - demonstrating that for lots of us, what used to be impossible is now an option, what used to fill us with anxiety is now something we give a go. The growth is everywhere to be seen and alongside this we expect some bumps in the road. As relationships form and develop we will inevitably find things hard at times, but how we come out the other side is all the more important. With that in mind, I'm hugely proud of all the young people in the school this week.

Have a great weekend all, Sam
